Child abuse investigations will be, if not currently, one of the most important encounters of your career. As an investigator, you are the first line of communication for the victim and the driving force of justice for the child. If not conducted properly, the issues surrounding these types of investigations can be life changing and easily leave a department in ruins.

Children are one of most precious things in life. Don't find yourself trying to investigate this type of crime without the proper training.

The instructor for this class brings over 12 years' experience investigating crimes against children. His experience as a lead investigator in over 2,000 cases involving neglect, physical abuse and sexual abuse of children can help shed light on these types of sensitive investigations.
